Math 1650: Pre-Calculus

www.math.unt.edu/~ps007

Section 021 meets MTWR, 10 – 11:50 am in WH 215.
Final exam on Fri 11 Aug 2006 in the regular class room/time.

Instructor: Paisa Seeluangsawat <paisa@unt.edu>, GAB 426, no office phone.

Office hours: Mon – Thurs, 1-2pm in GAB 426.

Math Lab in GAB 440:
- Mon - Thurs: 7 am – 7 pm.
- Fri, Sat: 1 am – 5 pm.
- Closed Sundays and holidays

Prerequisite: Math 1100 (C or better), or equivalent transfer credits, or passing the placement test.

Calculator: No calculator during quizzes and exams. For homework, you will need a calculator that can do + – × ÷, power, log, sin, sin⁻¹.

Grading:
- Homework (and quizzes) 30 %
- Midterms 40 %
- Final Exam 30 %

Our actual grading scale will depend on how hard the exams are and how the class does comparing to other past classes. Some pre-calculus classes in the past have A ~ 80%, B ~ 70%, C ~ 60%, and D ~ 50%.

- For homework, you can work together. You may ask each other when you get stuck. You may check answers. You may not copy each other’s homework write-up.
- Homework is due at the beginning of class. No late homework accepted. To make up for occasional sickness/emergencies, three homeworks will be dropped.
- Each in-class quiz weights as much as a homework.
- Students whose schedule conflicts with any exam should let me know well in advance to schedule an early exam. Late exams are accommodated only for important emergencies accompanied by an official written verification.

(continue on the next page)
Notes:

- What could be worse than failing the class? How about getting kicked out of school for cheating!? See, http://www.unt.edu/csrr.

- It is the responsibility of students with certified disabilities to provide the instructor with appropriate documentation from the Dean of Students Office.

- Online homework assistance is available through Math Lab at, www.math.unt.edu/mathlab/emathlab.

- Students are responsible for meeting all university deadlines (registrations, fee payment, prerequisite verification, drop deadlines, etc. See Schedule of Classes and Undergraduate Catalog for policies and dates.)

- Final grades are available online at, http://my.unt.edu the week after the final exam.